Power aperture product versus detection range